Three wounded in liquor store shooting

A gunman who opened fire on a crowd of people outside an East Oakland liquor store Thursday night and wounded three was being sought by police yesterday.

Two of the victims, Alonzo McCullough, 19, who was hit in the neck, and Tarus Williams, 18, shot in the knee, were treated at a hospital and released.

The third victim, Terrance Key, 15, was admitted to Highland General Hospital for a gunshot wound in the stomach.

Sgts. Sue Hoffman and Jerry Kramer said the three, who knew each other, were among a dozen people standing outside a liquor store at 71st Avenue and East 14th Street just after 10 p.m. Thursday.

The sergeants said a man with a semiautomatic weapon walked across the street towards the group and fired more than 15 shots at them before fleeing.

Police said the shooting may have been drug-related.
